TEDDY

There once was a boy born with a girl body. Because of his body, people thought he was a girl and even him thought so. It lasted years before he realized who he was. When it happened, he was already a young adult, a college student. He wanted to cut his hair but he was scared of his family's reaction. He was brave so he did it all the same. His mother cried, his father screamed, but after a long talk, they finally understood and accepted him. He was looking for a new name, a masculine name, because he didn't like the feminine one his parents had given to him at birth thinking he was a girl. He found it while reading a newspaper where there was an article about his favourite girl's band, the Teddy Girls. He was now Teddy.
